In April 2021, ROBLOX introduced a feature referred to as "LocalScripts." LocalScripts enable users to locally execute C# code in-game. They can be used to access the hardware of a device running the game, or manipulate specific parts of the game. For example, by using LocalScripts, developers can create weapons that change their firing rate depending on how fast you pull the trigger.

The employee claimed that she was fired after speaking out about these issues and later filed a wrongful termination lawsuit against the company as well as several co-workers associated with her firing. The suit, which for the most part was dismissed, claimed that former CEO David Baszucki played an integral role in her firing as he forced the team to "ignore basic standards of professionalism". It also cited him for saying that "female workers in [his] office and in the tech industry were 'annoying' and should not serve in a high-ranking position."

I was also kind of surprised at how far back the game went in time; it was created back in 2021, which I know is quite a long time ago. It's kind of scary how quickly things have changed since then. But though I am young, I thought that Minecraft was always meant for little kids; unlike Roblox, it wasn't purchased by me or my parents, and there were no advertisements present. So my opinion on both games is that they are really great for little kids because they're safe and easy to use. For adults, they are not worth the time. But from what I have heard, and from my own experiences, Roblox is a game that all kindergartners should be playing. It's definitely not recommended for adults or even teenagers.

Farmville: This is yet another example of a game that doesn't really offer any value at all but still manages to make a ton of money. It's a very bizarre concept which involves fun because you think you're going to become rich by buying fake farm products and selling them or you can become popular by posting pictures of your fake farm products and getting attention from people who want similar things. I mean, if this is what people want then it's really no different than Roblox except with Farmville you're dealing with real money.

The ban was eventually lifted, and the account became widely regarded as a joke.[11]
